In the daily record should be written an account of the service user's progress and any nursing or medical interventions that took place with appropriate rationale for these. It should be similar to that which we would write in a diary although these accounts should not be written in a subjective, chatty, or judgemental style. The report should focus on what the nurse/carer observed what was done, and how the service user responded.

A statement of account is issued by a business to its customers. It shows all sales made to a customer over a given period. They are issued to customers to prompt them to pay a balance which will soon be due for payment or to remind them to pay an overdue balance. They are also useful for the customer, not only to remind them to make the payment, but also to allow them to cross reference the invoices and credit notes with those on their own system.
