Shark Vs Train

Shark vs Train by Chris Barton is not known for it's literary genius, but it is a humorous and colorful book that my 4 year old son absolutely loves. I will be honest and say that the side-conversations in the story (those written in idea bubbles) are a bit distracting in my opinion.

Shark vs. Train: Barton, Chris, Lichtenheld, Tom ...

"Shark vs. Train" by Chris Barton is a humorous picture book of a battle between a great white shark and a steam train. The book reveals that there is no obvious winner as a shark is successful in water and sports that involve water, but the train is successful in times when rides are given or when a loud sound or weight is tested.

Shark vs. Train by Chris Barton - Goodreads

Shark wins at high diving, not surprisingly, while Train comes out on top when it comes to burping. Other face-offs are less immediately obvious: Train stretches vertically to triumph at basketball, while Shark's sharp-toothed clown costume works best for trick-or-treating.

Of course, the answer depends on the type of competition (Shark aces the high-dive, but Train has the upper hand...er, smokestack...in roasting marshmallows) and the terrain on which it's held (Train doesn't function so well in the ocean).

In some, one toy or the other boasts an obvious advantage: shark aces the high-dive jump, while train's flame-belching smokestack gives him an edge in the burping contest. Other times they share equally in success or failure—their lack of thumbs prevents either from video game prowess.
